THE COMPETITION

AGRA and John Deere recently joined forces to support successful Mechanisation Service Providers based on the John Deere S.M.A.R.T Model.

As part of its commitment to small and medium-sized businesses (SMEs), AGRA offers support programs for business skills and financial management, while John Deere, through its Dealer Network, provides support with operator training, technician development, and after-sales services. In addition, John Deere also provides financing of equipment through John Deere Financial.

To enter this competition, eligible applicants (youth groups/semi SMEs in Kenya) need to submit a business plan outlining their plan for running and managing a Mechanisation Service Provision business, after which the most compelling business plan shall be announced as the winner.

Agriculture Focused

The youth group (SME) should have agriculture as their core functionality. A minimum of 80% of their operations should be focused on an agriculture venture along the value chain.

The competition is designed to foster youth entrepreneurs; as a result, younger groups or start-up groups having operated for less than three years are not eligible. Ideal groups for the competition will have been in operation for more than three years. These are the ones that are already operating as functional groups. While the groups do not need to be cash-flow positive, the group is required to have revenues to be eligible.
